LABOR LEADER WOULD APPOINT COMMISSION

Ramsay Macdonald Makes Suggestion For British Harvesters in Canada

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—An agent home to press upon the government the necessity of appointing a commission, which should be half British and half Canadian, in discussing the labor of Canadian immigrants, said the Rt. Hon. Ramsay Macdonald, ex-premier of Britain, and leader of the British Labor party, the official opposition in the House of Commons, upon his arrival here from Ottawa.

Mr. Macdonald is about to conclude a month's tour of Canada. He will sail for home on the Empress of Australia.

"My impressions have been nothing but good," said the Labor leader in discussing his tour. "This is a wonderful country, developing very rapidly, and with its riches one is here promised a richer life than in the home of the world. It is a pity that the almost unlimited possibilities that your land offers are not being fully utilized."

"I think you will have to devise a well-thought out scheme of settlement so that you may get the right kind of labor that you want, and then have settlement so that the early years may be the best of the country, which by future attempts to relieve a state of the present, which is done by the very much concerned at the present moment. I am all grateful to Canada for what it has done, but I think that there were great things that the people who remain may produce the British workers, which we should do our best to counteract. It may also be that Canada cannot afford to pay for Canadian wheat in the old country, is the idea still cherished. The British people of Great Britain, Mr. Macdonald said, he had no doubt, nothing definite had yet been done, but that the Labor leaders had the idea under serious consideration."

NO SECRETS IN NAVAL AGREEMENT

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, last night delivered a speech to the assembly of the League of Nations in defense of the Franco-British naval agreement, with a statement that it would be completely public, "the privilege of the league committee to disarmament."

The speech of Mr. Briand, who took a ship at Russia and returned to Geneva, was made in the French chamber, which made the day outstanding in the history of the world. Briand, Venezuela and Persia were declared to be the "three great powers" of the world, and the French minister said that the Chinese refused the decision, among the several countries, to be disappointed by the choice of these three.

The French foreign minister told the assembly in one of the great speeches of his career, that there were no secret clauses in the agreement with England and that it had been arranged for the sole purpose of facilitating reduction of armaments.

In other parts of his speech, he replied pointedly to the Chinese contention that they had been deceived by other countries when an idea of reduction in their forces. "Instead of being deceived, they have been deceived by their own greed," he said.

"Germany also has a magnificent reservoir of man-power from which she can draw a much larger army," he said. "The French statement criticized Russia for increasing her armaments and for 'gloating in it' while the British, from the signing of the Kellogg pact, has renounced war as a business, the United States, which for complete disarmament, a 'neutral' position."

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A number of people can see fairies but are ashamed to say so because of the foolish superstition with which they are surrounded, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the famous writer of detective stories, said in a speech at the annual meeting of the International Spiritualists Association, which was held at the Royal Albert Hall, London, last night.

A Dressmaking Revolution! KUT-EEZ PATTERNS

A New Method that makes Home Dressmaking as Easy as A B C

—Women who have for many years coped with puzzling and complicated loose tissue patterns will be delighted with the new Kut-eez pattern service.

—It is a new, effective and simple way of dress making. With it cutting-out fears are removed and the results are as satisfactory as if an expert custom cutter had arranged your material.

—Kut-eez patterns are printed all on one stout sheet of paper. All you have to do is buy the exact length and width of material stated, lay the pattern on top of it, then cut through both paper and material along the printed lines. There is not even a chance of going wrong.

—The Kut-eez pattern is as nearly fool proof as it can be made. It doesn't require the advice of an expert dressmaker to interpret its signs, or to lay it out for cutting. All that has been done for you.

—It requires less material than the old fashioned tissue pattern.

—Kut-eez patterns mean that all the thinking and laying out are done for you by professional cutters and designers. The finished garment therefore has the distinctiveness and fashion of tailor made goods.

REGULATED DEVELOPMENT

The city commissioners are to prepare the areas in which the establishment of morgues will not be permitted. Certain areas have already been marked as "industrial." There is thus being worked out by degrees, a town-planning scheme, on a basis of detailed restrictions.

It is perhaps late in the day to attempt anything much more comprehensive way of a general city "lay-out." But several incidents have arisen lately which suggest that it would be well to survey the whole situation with a view to enacting such regulations as are still possible to prevent the invasion of residential districts by commercial workings which would be objected to.

Edmonton is pretty certain to experience a rapid increase in business places of all sorts during the next few years. While it is desirable to encourage this expansion, it is none the less desirable and right that protection should be given to those who have built homes in sections which they have every reason to suppose would continue to be residential. To not give that protection would be to discourage the building of expensive houses and to make the city a shabby town rather than a "home" town.

GOING AT THE FACTS

Lord Lovat will have, when he returns to Great Britain, information with which to correct some of the curious and harmful notions now current regarding Canada, its attachment to the Empire, its physical resources, and the attitude of its people toward British immigration and immigrants. He has visited the city at the right season, has travelled extensively, and has made his journey in a leisurely manner, which has enabled him to come into contact with large numbers of Britishers who have come here and have found out what reception is accorded the immigrant from Britain and what he can achieve on a western farm.

The testimony from men who have tried the experience of the particular, is useful in offsetting the claim that Britishers are not welcomed, or not wanted, in Canada. How that misconception ever gained currency is a mystery to the Canadian, as is a mystery to Canadians. They simply cannot understand it, for it has no foundation in fact. But it is a factor in dissuading desirable people from coming to the Dominion. Lord Lovat and his associates should be urged to make it clear that the correct method, by relating the experience of the British-born settlers among whom they have mingled.

THE FIRST "LITTLE CANADIAN"

Hon. R. B. Bennett, addressing the Associated Canadian Clubs at Calgary a few days since, gave some attention to those who are short to join it. That Sir Robert Gordon was the man who first announced to the world that Canada had attained a new "status" as the result of the war.

Sir Robert stressed this point, with little enough cause but with great persistence, during the latter years of the war. If that is the case, the view that Canadians are a completely self-governing people are to be dubbed "little Canadians." It is obvious that the view to whom the term should be applied in the first instance is the leader under whom Mr. Bennett served and to whom place he has now succeeded.

Getting There

By EDGAR A. GLEIST

The bare and the turtle would've heard of, no doubt. That it isn't enough to be smart is a fact. But now and then something occurs to recall the fact that those people who learn it all in a flash, if often turns out—though it doesn't look like it—that the man who arrived was the slow boy in school.

The slugged was brilliant—at least on "test" days. In school he represented whatever he read. Without any effort at all on his part. He appeared to have mastered his lessons by heart. The plodder behind him to dole were told that. They were slow and stupid—but always they passed!

It never occurred to the brilliant young chap that it isn't enough to be smart in a flash. For the trap must stay about still in its rest, and nothing's worth more if it's caught in it. When he finished with school he hurried out as a clerk. But this clever young man hadn't learned how to work.

He never could build himself down in a task. The things he knew now he was too proud to ask. He felt that he knew his way around. Determined to better his place, he went to work. Now he is smart boy in that the foreman would tell him that he is not smart.

If he slow here in school was that of the shop. But this clever young man hadn't learned how to work.

Lord Lovat and his associates should be urged to make it clear that the correct method, by relating the experience of the British-born settlers among whom they have mingled.

THE FIRST "LITTLE CANADIAN"

Hon. R. B. Bennett, addressing the Associated Canadian Clubs at Calgary a few days since, gave some attention to those who are short to join it. That Sir Robert Gordon was the man who first announced to the world that Canada had attained a new "status" as the result of the war.

Sir Robert stressed this point, with little enough cause but with great persistence, during the latter years of the war. If that is the case, the view that Canadians are a completely self-governing people are to be dubbed "little Canadians." It is obvious that the view to whom the term should be applied in the first instance is the leader under whom Mr. Bennett served and to whom place he has now succeeded.

The bare and the turtle would've heard of, no doubt. That it isn't enough to be smart is a fact. But now and then something occurs to recall the fact that those people who learn it all in a flash, if often turns out—though it doesn't look like it—that the man who arrived was the slow boy in school.

The slugged was brilliant—at least on "test" days. In school he represented whatever he read. Without any effort at all on his part. He appeared to have mastered his lessons by heart. The plodder behind him to dole were told that. They were slow and stupid—but always they passed!

It never occurred to the brilliant young chap that it isn't enough to be smart in a flash. For the trap must stay about still in its rest, and nothing's worth more if it's caught in it. When he finished with school he hurried out as a clerk. But this clever young man hadn't learned how to work.

He never could build himself down in a task. The things he knew now he was too proud to ask. He felt that he knew his way around. Determined to better his place, he went to work. Now he is smart boy in that the foreman would tell him that he is not smart.

If he slow here in school was that of the shop. But this clever young man hadn't learned how to work.

Ellen Terry died.

The news of her death more than passing notice for she was one of the most conspicuous figures on the stage of her generation.

A brother of Charles Reade, a co-worker with Henry Irving, and until her death a noted figure, she was one of the most remarkable women of her generation.

David Reade always called attention to the secret of her success when he said "She was filled with life and vitality and displayed these qualities so perfectly in her acting that she made every part all sorts during the next few years. While it is desirable to encourage this expansion, it is none the less desirable and right that protection should be given to those who have built homes in sections which they have every reason to suppose would continue to be residential. To not give that protection would be to discourage the building of expensive houses and to make the city a shabby town rather than a "home" town.

GOING AT THE FACTS

Lord Lovat will have, when he returns to Great Britain, information with which to correct some of the curious and harmful notions now current regarding Canada, its attachment to the Empire, its physical resources, and the attitude of its people toward British immigration and immigrants. He has visited the city at the right season, has travelled extensively, and has made his journey in a leisurely manner, which has enabled him to come into contact with large numbers of Britishers who have come here and have found out what reception is accorded the immigrant from Britain and what he can achieve on a western farm.

The testimony from men who have tried the experience of the particular, is useful in offsetting the claim that Britishers are not welcomed, or not wanted, in Canada. How that misconception ever gained currency is a mystery to the Canadian, as is a mystery to Canadians. They simply cannot understand it, for it has no foundation in fact. But it is a factor in dissuading desirable people from coming to the Dominion. Lord Lovat and his associates should be urged to make it clear that the correct method, by relating the experience of the British-born settlers among whom they have mingled.

NO PROSPECT ARMY-NAVY RUGBY TILTS

Teams May Not Meet on Gridiron for Two Years

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Prospect of another army-navy football game further remote today. In fact, it is entirely possible that the two teams will not meet on the gridiron for at least two more years.

The army's schedule for 1929 is already completed and arrangements have been made for the big game of 1930 and the navy fails to appear on either list.

The navy's schedule was revealed last evening by Mr. Paul B. Fleming, director of athletics of West Point at the Hotel Commodore here in New York.

Mr. Fleming said that the navy's schedule for 1929 is already completed and arrangements have been made for the big game of 1930 and the navy fails to appear on either list.

GRAIN MARKETS

WHEAT TRADING WAS INACTIVE

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11.—Wheat trading today was inactive, although the market at times displayed a little movement. Very little export business was transacted, and operations were again hampered by the failure of operators, with Chicago concerns buying the southern market. Firmness in the market was largely a result of light offerings. Closing quotations showed a gain of 1/2 cent.

Big crops in the United States as estimated by the Washington government Monday were a bearish factor here.

Harvesting will be held up in Saskatchewan for a day or two as a result of rain during the week. The Canadian west are forecast.

A fair demand in all grades was in evidence on the cash grain market, with the exception of No. 2 northern, other grades were generally un-when dropped 1 cent. Prices on the exchange.

An advance of 3 cents in the October futures of the feature of the grain market. Rye and barley were firm, while wheat advanced sharply in a day's market.
